

People would agree that listening to music while exercising makes the experience more enjoyable. Participants will be exposed to music and no music while walking on a treadmill. Estimation of time duration and number of steps taken will be recorded. The hypothesis is that the participants listening to music while performing the task will give a shorter estimation of time. We also predict the number of steps will differ between conditions.