

Metabolomics is the study of chemical processes involving metabolites, the small molecule substrates, intermediates and products of metabolism. Hepatotoxicity, or chemical-driven liver damage, can be caused by acetaminophen (APAP), commonly referred to as Tylenol. The specific aim of this investigation is to compare the metabolites in three different groups in terms of the APAP each group consumes, using nuclear magnetic resonance.