

The OMEA conference this year allowed me and my fellow classmates to explore our major's possibilities while providing prospects for Marietta College. During the conference, we went to seminars that enhanced our abilities as music educators and met educators in the field. In this way, we made connections that can help us get job in the future. Not only that, but we participated in recruiting prospective students to join us here at Marietta College. The Investigative Studies funds are helping us grow in our field.