

A detailed look into what life was like for Russians who immigrated to the United States following the Russian Revolution. The project showed that many Russians preferred to live in Europe but were drawn to the United States for economic and stability reasons. The project followed the immigration process for four Russian immigrants who came to the United States between 1919 and 1940. With Paris and New York serving major channels through which the four case studies made their way to the United States.
